ON THE FARM...

With a chill in the air and the days growing shorter, winter seems to be upon us. Life on the farm this time of year turns to finishing necessary projects with the arrival of winter's white blanket of snow. The extended fall-like weather allowed us to complete tilling the soil allowing the soil to warm more quickly when planting season arrives. Pasture plant life has ebbed away as the land goes to sleep for the winter. Another major project accomplished was cleaning barns and moving the older calves to their new homes for the winter months to make way for the remaining babies that were born late in the fall. Our last birth for the year took place on November 30th. All total, 78 babies were born on the farm this year with seven births being twins. This is quite a high number of twin births for a herd of 60 cows. The cows have grown a thicker coat of hair in preparation for a colder winter.
