ON THE FARM...

The hot weather has been stressful for the cattle. Dairy cows hate hot weather! Whenever the heat index exceeds 66°, they are negatively impacted. They eat less, milk production declines and milkfat content of their milk decreases. On the hottest day of the most recent heat wave, when the heat index hit 122°, we actually kept the cows in the barn with fans on them and sprayed them with water repeatedly until after evening milking, when they were turned out to pasture. The mercury dropped to 65° that night which provided much needed relief for cows and humans alike.

Erin and I got a surprise recently when we were collecting eggs in the chicken coop. We removed one protective hen from her nesting box to discover she was not sitting on eggs, but instead on four kittens! Though we were surprised, we were also relieved to find the kittens had hair and not feathers. The youngsters were later matched with their biologically correct mother who possessed much great nursing ability than their foster mother. Pat Daninger

FARM - CITY DAY NOTES:

- The winner of a year's supply of milk was Kevin Dunrud of Forest Lake. Congratulations, Kevin!
- The name selected for the baby calf from among the entries was Morris, submitted by Matt Maki and several members of the Coozenoy family. Sara Morris was a member of the Forest Lake High School Class of 2010. She tragically passed away from brain cancer a few months before graduation. We are please to be able honor her memory in this way.
